About The Programme

This programme is designed to provide hands-on exposure to the R Programming for research analysis, data visualization and statistical modeling. Students will learn how to apply R in solving real-world problems, analyzing historical data and interpreting research findings effectively. To learn how to use statistical methods in R for analyzing data and predicting future outcomes, and to understand how research analysis can help improve learning, teaching and problem-solving skills. This programme supports Unsustainable goals SDG8 – Decent Work and Economic Growth and SDG 17-Partnership for the Goals.
